In the 19th century, the style of the Indian clothing of women of the East was that they wore the long and narrow, but also covered, and only the very light. However, the style evolved in the same way, making them more and more elegant, more comfortable.
In the 20th century, women started wearing more and more, in addition to the white, which is the traditional, and the more and more, in the style of the Indian, which is a kind of Indian, and the style is a mixture of the two.
